B

1. This group started to interact rather slowly but its momentum increased after the first two days. We are now satisfied that the desired different points of view are being properly examined and developed. One segment of the class was successful in solving the communications exercise - only the second time this has happened. The "In-Basket" is now under vigorous attack. Perhaps the large enrollment of seven from one office (Communications) held this group back somewhat in the beginning. In this area we are also looking into the possible disadvantage of having a "boss" and one or more of his immediate subordinates in the same class. ✓
